STOPPED HIS PAPER

I've stopped my paper, yes I have,
I didn't like to do it,
But the editor he got to smart,
And I allow he'll rue it,
I am a man who pays his debts
And will not be insulted;
So when an editor gets smart,
I want to be consulted.
I took his paper 'leven years,
And helped him all I could sir,
An' when it comes to dunnin' me
I didn't think he would sir,
But that he did, and you can see
It made me hot as thunder,
Says I, I'll stop the sheet, I will,
If the cussed thing goes under!
I hunted up the measley whelp,
And for his cunnin' caper
I paid him 'leven years and quit!
Yes sir, I've stopped the paper."
—Scissored.

One of the escaped convicts from the pen has been "re-penned."

The Mexican situation is no worse—has always been bad enough.

Rain clouds in the sky the first of the week, war clouds later on when it didn't rain.

It is now estimated that the legislature will adjourn by the 15th inst. But will it?

A bloodless duel in France; and an exchange says the next thing is a bloodless war; but not so long as "blood tells."

The prize fight measure was a source of considerable amusement in house. But it was not killed by scorn and ridicule.

Eighty bills have grown out of the forty measures suggested by the governor in his message to the special session of the legislature.

To nominate Roosevelt is an error. And will the national convention make a fatal blunder this year in the face of the condition of affairs?

The election bill has been discussed, and during the meantime the legislators have been cussed—and they are now very much disgusted.

The republicans had a double header convention at Tucson. The T. R. wing bolted and now there are two delegations going to the national convention.

Too the visitors who comes tomorrow, we all lift our hats and bid you welcome! Flagstaff is glad to extend you the glad hand and we bid a hearty "howdy".

People in Flagstaff are coming alive in fine shape. Everybody is willing to boost, and the one essential thing now is organized effort and efficient leadership.

"The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground." The legislators are "sweating blood" right now, and it is a witness against the governor, sure enough.

It is whispered that the governor is going to have an election this fall, and if the legislature does not pass the measure he is likely to call another extra session in order to get the bill.

As the time for the national republican convention draws nearer the more it is evident that Teddy is going to make a "grand stand" play, and carry defeat in the convention if he can, and a scoop to the election if he is defeated.

Coconino National Forest

and road purposes. 25 per cent of the total amount received from all the forests in Arizona is divided up pro rata among the counties in accordance with the area of National Forest land in the different counties. The remainder is placed in the State school fund. During the next ten years the receipts will probably average about $130,000 annually, and the expenses for the administration of the forest, including permanent improvements, will probably be about $30,000 and $40,000 annually.

The principal industries established on the forest are lumbering and grazing. Agriculture is carried on by a few people, but not to the extent that is common on most National Forests. There are three large mills located on the forest which are dependent to a greater or less extent on the National Forest for their lumber. One of the companies will, during the next thirteen years, cut its own timber almost exclusively, while the other two will be absolutely dependent on the National Forest. The capital invested in this line of business is approximately $1,000,000. The total cut of these three mills is about 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 feet b. m., valued in the finished product at about $900,000 per year. Small amounts of timber and cordwood are sold to other parties, which aggregate in value, about $2000 per year.

As previously stated, the total number of stock grazed on the forest amounts to 34,000 head of cattle and horses and 90,000 head of sheep. The total amount of money invested in this industry amounts to about $1,500,000. About 8000 head of cattle and horses and 50,000 lambs are sold annually.

About 3,500 acres of land are at present under cultivation by various parties and practically all of this land is in oats, hay and potatoes. Two or three hundred acres of land located on Oak Creek and Wet Beaver Creek are irrigated and produce a varied assortment of crops and fruits. Practically all of these industries are dependent on Flagstaff as a supply and market point.

The National Forest materially assists this region in that it protects and makes permanent the stock business and the lumbering business and thus establishes a solid foundation for general business. In addition to this 36 per cent of the National Forest receipts is turned over to the State and ultimately finds its way to the county treasury to be expended on roads and schools.

Northern Arizona Good Roads

The Northern Arizona Good Roads Association held a meeting Monday evening at the courthouse, at which the committee on resolutions reported the presentation of the resolutions, adopted by the Good Roads Association at the former meeting, to the board of supervisors. These resolutions were presented in person by the committee and officers of the Good Roads Association, who were courteously received by the board of supervisors and the matter of permanent improvement of the roads in Coconino county was given most serious consideration. The resolutions will be published in the minutes of the board.

The meeting adjourned to meet again Thursday evening to consider final arrangements for the entertainment of the Studebaker Sociability tour from Phoenix, which will arrive in Flagstaff Saturday afternoon. The program of entertainment will consist of a reception and entertainment at the Majestic Opera house Saturday evening, a visit to the Cliff Dwellings in Walnut Canyon, picnic lunch and open air concert, followed by a run to other points of interest during the afternoon. Lowell Observatory will be open Sunday evening to those who may desire to visit this famous institution.

The road from Flagstaff to the Grand Canyon is in excellent condition and the schedule time for the Studebaker run is five hours for the eighty-five miles. The road supervisor has had a gang of men and teams working on the road between Flagstaff and Williams and the road is now in good condition for travel. The road to the Cliff Dwelling in Walnut Canyon with the exception of a small stretch around some of the old roads fenced by homesteaders, is in very excellent condition. This stretch is very good with the exception of a few rough places. All the roads leading from Flagstaff to the local points of interest are now in good condition and continued work on them will make them still better. The principal item of interest in road matters is the action taken by the board of supervisors calling for a survey to furnish plans and estimates for crossings over Canyon Padre and Canyon Diablo. When this work is done, we will have a good road between the eastern Coconino county line and Ash Fork, Arizona, along the railroad, which will not only afford a main artery for local traffic reaching this road, but will furnish a highway for transcontinental touring cars to Flagstaff and the Grand Canyon from either direction and in line with the plan of connecting the county seats of the northern tier of counties of Arizona with a good highway. Later this road between the east line of Coconino county and Flagstaff will be surveyed and straightened as a basis for a permanent highway.
